

Paul Collins Bio

Paul is currently the BID Manager for Future Wood Green in Haringey. The BID was formed after a successful vote in March 2018 and has over forty projects and activities to deliver during its first five years based around four core themes including Safe and Secure, Place and Connectivity, Business and Investment and Events and Marketing.

Before Wood Green, Paul has had several other roles in other BIDs as a BID Manager and Markets and Marketing. Before this, Paul was one of the founders for a local business organisation in his hometown of Croydon, South London which after the Riots, became one of the first twelve Portas Pilots which he Chaired and helped to deliver a number of projects including the launch of street art and Pop up Croydon.

Paul started his working career in Electrical and Theatre Lighting which he started with an apprenticeship at the BBC TV Centre in White City before working with a major Theatre and Lighting Company, Domnar. Following a role at Segaworld at London's Trocadero, Paul went into Property Management.

In his spare time, Paul enjoys music, films, theatre as well as mountaineering just to get away from it all!